Stanford Energy 3.0

Small Company/Non-Profit Membership Participation

Stanford Energy 3.0 facilitates interactions between companies and other organizations, and Stanford’s faculty and graduate students, across the full range of energy-related topics. Stanford Energy 3.0 is primarily about establishing a relationship and the exchange of ideas. Companies benefit from access to emerging technology, out-of-the-box thinking, and innovative problem solving. Stanford benefits from exposure to practical real-world problems, constraints, and opportunities. Stanford Energy 3.0 connects industry members with faculty and students doing energy-related research throughout Stanford University.

Stanford Energy 3.0 small company/non-profit members receive multiple benefits, including invitations to Stanford Energy 3.0 events, invitations to the Global Climate and Energy Project Annual Research Symposium, quarterly Stanford Energy 3.0 newsletters, facilitated access to Stanford research programs, faculty, and graduate students, and meetings and dialogue with the Managing Director of Stanford Energy 3.0. The Stanford Energy 3.0 small company/non-profit membership fee is US$25,000.00 per year.

Member companies come from a wide range of industries, including buildings and construction, communications, computer, consumer electronics, instrument, legal, engineered materials, oil and gas, semiconductor, semiconductor equipment, solar, utilities, and venture capital.

Stanford Energy 3.0 revenue is used to support PhD student research, symposia and workshops, seed projects, equipment purchases, faculty and graduate student travel, and affiliates program operations. Stanford Energy 3.0 is managed by Jim Chen, Managing Director, jimchen@stanford.edu, office +1 650 723-2019.
